CHINA CHAMBER OF INTERNATIONAL COMMERCE (CCOIC) is a national chamber of commerce organization established with the approval of the State Council and composed of enterprises, groups and other organizations engaged in international commercial activities in China. CCOIC adopts a membership system and its main responsibilities include: promoting economic and trade exchanges and cooperation between China and foreign countries; reflecting interest appeal of enterprises to international organizations and government departments of China and foreign countries on behalf of Chinese business community; participating in constitution and promotion of international trade rules; facilitating enterprises to participate in international competition and cooperation; safeguarding legitimate rights of its members, and actively advocating social responsibility and public welfare among business circles.

Therefore, on behalf of Chinese producers and exporters involved in the subject-referenced investigation, CCOIC respectfully request to register an interest in the TD0010: HFP Rebar case and coordinate its members involved to participate and cooperate with the investigation.

Please describe your interest in this case:

Pursuant to the Guidance: An introduction to our investigations process, CCOIC notes that there is a difference between “contributors” and “interested parties” in the UK trade remedy investigation. An interested party refers to any party directly involved in the investigation, including a trade or business association representing one or many of these parties while a contributor is a person or organization who is not an interested party but who has contacted the authority so that they can participate in an investigation.

In this respect, CCOIC would like to mention that as a national commerce organization, many members in CCOIC were involved in the current investigation. Hence, CCOIC respectfully request to register as an interested party rather than a contributor in this investigation.
